

All at My Window

A soft thump,
a large rump,
all
at my
window.
Safe in my bed,
all the animals in my head,
all
at
my window.
The blinding feathers
the gathering heathers,
all
at
my
window.
A large ledge,
they gather hedge,
all
at
my
window.
I wake up in the morning,
a cry of warning,
all
at
my
window.
The visitors that came,
as the day waned,
all
at
my
window.
It is to discover,
all to my wonder,
all
at
my
window.
The birds that settled,
they made their home,
all
at
my window.
