Credo

I believe—

That love is the strongest force.
If people are fighting, nothing will be right.

That fun is important, enjoying life.
If you don't enjoy your time
You will have wasted it.
Fun, for me, is making props for skits,
Like a severed toe that I put in the fridge,
Blood, made from epoxy resin.
I enjoy watching funny and scary TV movies
Like Poltergeist and Signs.

I do not believe—

In war,
Violence and hatred are wrong
And against happiness.

I do not believe
In Gorgonzola cheese.
It's stinky, moldy, and sour,
And makes me feel gross.

I do not believe in cilantro.
It smells like dirt and running water.
It tastes like wet rocks.

Or hot sauce, peppers, spicy powder on tacos and Cheetos. It burns my tongue and makes my eyes water.

I used to believe—

In Santa Claus and the tooth fairy,
Which were parents in disguise.
And monsters, aliens, ghosts, and leprechauns.
