

Ode to Loss

RYAN THICH

FRANKLIN HIGH SCHOOL | 11^H GRADE

I forget your love hurts
How others forget death
To say these blurry motions of mines
Aren't of my heavy eyes, even
I forget dreams exist at night

It's your starry eyes, blue skin
Blue lips, still hair
Still, I'm not ready to face you
Cause just knowing you're close
Is enough to make my heartbeat sing

And it grips the back of my head,
A ripping motion of feelings follows
Rippling cold chills across my spine
I spin with vertigo in one emotion;
Dreadful, to know you'll come some day

If I long for you, I don't know
It's in the back of my mind you lie
Still, I can't help but let you stay
And so I'll wait for your love
How others wait for death

This broadside was created in celebration of Seattle Arts & Lectures' Writers in the Schools (WITS) program's Year End Reading. It was written at Franklin High School during the 2022-23 school year with WITS Writer-in-Residence, Clara Olivo.